

We would like to warmly welcome you to the 74th edition of the Chemistry Colloquium at the University of Galway.

Galway is situated on the West Coast of Ireland. The medieval city dating from 1124, is a vibrant cultural centre with pubs, music, modern art and the breath-taking scenery of the Wild Atlantic Way.

Car Parking

University of Galway enjoys a central location in Galway City and with this, comes parking restrictions.

- It's important for all guests to note that a permit is required to park in the University of Galway. Guests who plan on parking at the University during the Chemistry Colloquium must register their car and details here. Guests will be able to book a free permit (select Chemistry Colloquium) which will be valid for both days. This will allow guests to park in any white bay space on campus. Clamping is in operation and guests who do not register for a permit will be clamped.
- Pay and Display machines or Pay by Phone are also available on site. Please note, that P&D tickets only apply to spaces marked in blue adjacent to the meters - P&D tickets do not allow you to park anywhere else.
- There are also 'reserved' spaces and loading bays - do not park in these. Your permit/P&D ticket allows you to park in specific places and you must familiarise yourself with the zones, and which permit applies to what carpark.
- Allow plenty of time on your first visit to campus with your car.

Getting There

Getting to Galway

Galway city is served by an extensive public transport network linking Dublin, Shannon and Knock airports.
